Largest Electoral Vote Ever Rolled Up By Republican Candidate Won by President-Elect

Successful Party Will Have Working Majority of From Twelve to Sixteen Votes

MAJORITY OF 100 IN HOUSE

Republican Governors Elected in Every State Except Those of The "Solid South"

(By United Press)
New York, Nov. 3.—The scope of the republican victory that swept the nation yesterday continued to grow as the returns were completed today.

These returns showed that Harding has been elected president by the greatest popular vote ever announced in the history of American politics and the largest electoral vote ever rolled up by a republican candidate.

Republicans have strengthened their grip on the senate and will have a working majority from 12 to 16 seats.

They will have topped the heaviest majority of approximately 100 votes in the house.

Republican governors were elected in every state with the exception of those of the "solid south."

Harding's electoral vote has reached 372 with indications that the doubtful states may carry the figures to the 400 mark.

Plurality In State Is Estimated 150,000

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 3.—The republican landslide swept Indiana ticket in every office from president down to the legislature.

Returns from nearly two-thirds of the 3,385 precincts in the state indicated a republican plurality of nearly 150,000. It appeared that in the precincts heard from in the gubernatorial race, McCray was leading the ticket in Indiana. Harding was averaging about one vote a precinct behind McCray and Watson was re-elected to the senate by about one vote behind Harding.

Incomplete returns have been received from nearly all of the 92 counties. Some of them were complete.

Indications are that the republicans carried 76 counties, the democrats 16.

CALIFORNIA GOES FOR HARDING BY 300,000

San Francisco, Calif., Nov. 3.—Politicians today estimated Harding may roll up a plurality of 300,000 over Cox in California as compared with the 3,000 California plurality on which swept Wilson into the presidency four years ago.

Returns from 2,371 precincts out of a total of 6,177 in the state, many of which were incomplete, gave Harding 185,612; Cox 66,616.

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 3.—Harding won the entire republican state ticket won in Missouri by approximately 25,000, according to estimates based on incomplete returns early today. Senator Spencer was re-elected by 40,000.

Denver, Colo., Nov. 3.—Complete returns from 474 precincts of Colorado's 1,478 gave Harding 56,734; Cox 31,658. For Senator Nicholson, republican, 52,393; Scott, democrat, 45,528; Thomas, independent, 5,211. For governor, Shop, republican, 78,070; Collins, democrat, 30,122.

CARTHAGE MAN IS ELECTED

R. H. Hill Chosen Joint Senator Over J. T. Arbuckle of Rushville With Plurality of 2,382

The Sixth District put across the republican ticket with an estimated plurality of 10,000 votes.

In the entire district only two counties showed a democratic plurality, and in these two the party showed a loss over the usual number of democratic votes. In Franklin county, always democratic by a large majority, it was not expected to be over 250, and the offices were a close race, with a victory for the republican sheriff. In Hancock county, normally democratic by 500 votes, yesterday showed about 300 plurality over the republicans.

Shelbyville also turned the tables yesterday, and elected four men on the republican county ticket, each with big pluralities, showing that

GRATITUDE TO RUSH COUNTY

Senator James E. Watson remained in Rushville last night, instead of going to state headquarters in Indianapolis, and after hearing the early returns from Indiana, he was confident of his own election and of the national ticket. He retired shortly after nine o'clock. He was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Reynolds while in this city, and this morning went to Indianapolis, but will return here in a day or so.

Senator Watson stated this morning that while he was previously

Whole Republican Ticket Swept Into Office With Pluralities Ranging From 510 to 1627

JUDGE SPARKS LEADS TICKET

Receives Both Largest Vote and Plurality—County Gives Harding 1600 and McCray 1602

The whole republican ticket in Rush county was swept into office by unprecedented pluralities, ranging from 510 to 1627, in the landslide.

Judge Will M. Sparks, who was re-elected, heads the ticket with the largest vote and the largest plurality, and Albert Stevens, who was re-elected prosecutor, received the smallest margin over his democratic opponent.

Judge Sparks polled the largest vote of any candidate on the republican ticket in this county. He received 6173 votes, which gave him a plurality of 1626 over John D. Megee, who received 4547.

Prosecutor Stevens polled 5592

confident of his re-election, his plurality exceeded his estimate, which he had placed at between 75,000 and 85,000.

Before leaving for Indianapolis this morning, he stated: "I again renew my obligations to the good people of Rush county for the magnificent manner in which they have again expressed their confidence in me. I cannot adequately express my gratitude in words, but shall attempt to show it in the future by deeds."

Early last night and all day today he received congratulatory messages from people all over the United States. Senator Watson also sent messages to Senator Harding and other republican victors.

JAMES E. WATSON

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 3—Senator James Eli Watson re-elected by a heavy plurality on the republican ticket issued the following statement today:

"The president asked for a 'great and solemn referendum' and he got it. It was surely a 'great one' for the republicans and certainly a 'solemn one' for the democrats."

COUNTY VOTE

votes and his opponent, 5082, giving the former a margin of 510.

Senator Watson ran very close to the leader of the national ticket, Senator Harding, who was given a plurality of 1600 votes by Rush county. Although the vote for Harding was larger than that cast for Warren T. McCray, governor-elect, the latter received a plurality of two more than the presidential candidate here.

Next to Judge Sparks, Representative Richard N. Elliott polled the largest vote of any candidate for which Rush county voted Tuesday. He received 6139 votes, but his plurality was only 1547 due to the heavy vote cast for his opponent.

The returns were not as slow coming in as it was expected they would be, due to the fact that the women voting almost doubled the vote. The vote was delivered to the county election commission at about the customary rate, though nearly twice as many ballots were cast as in any previous election.

The board would have had the vote tabulated much sooner but for the fact that it was delayed by the returns from Jackson township not being delivered to the officials until six o'clock this morning. The officials of the Jackson township election board engaged in a wrangle over the challenging of absent voters' ballots and spent most of the night debating the proposition.

The prohibitionists, socialists, single-taxers and the farm labor party did not offer any serious opposition in this county, though all of these tickets were on the ballot.

The socialists polled a maximum of 35 votes, this number being cast for their candidates for governor and senator. Eugene V. Debs, the party's candidate for president, who is sojourning in the federal penitentiary at Atlanta, Georgia, was scratched by one socialist and received only 35 votes.

The farm labor party's candidates for president, senator and governor polled just one vote each. That vote was recorded in the second precinct of Anderson township. This party's candidate for congressman, Arthur A. Carmichael, however, found more favor with the voters of Rush county and received nine votes. Not a single vote was cast for the single tax party here.

The candidates for state office on the republican ticket received approximately the same pluralities as the county candidates. George Dehority, democratic candidate for treasurer of state, ran nearly one hundred ahead of the other democratic candidates on the state ticket in this county, on account of being related in Rushville and having many friends here.

Dehority received 4561 votes against 6001 for his opponent, Orr Davies of Kokomo. The vote on the state ticket here was as follows:

For lieutenant-governor, Brane (Rep.) 6089; Foster (Dem.) 4474.

For secretary of state, Jackson (Rep.) 6097; Wagner (Dem.) 4468.

Note: It would be illegal to publish these statements if they were not true.

This article was copied from Richmond, Ind. Item: "Mrs. Ali Daws, 430 Main St., this city, says: 'My goitre caused me to have terrible choking spells. One night I awoke and my throat was almost closed, and if I had not had instant medical attention I would have died. I could not lie down. Had to sleep in a chair or propped up with pillows. The throbbing and palpitation was terrible. This has been relieved by Sorbol Quadruple, and I can now lie flat on my back and very seldom feel choked. If you wish, you may use my letter; I am glad to tell my experience personally or by letter.'"

Sorbol Quadruple comes in small bottles containing enough for most cases. It will not stain or irritate. Does not interfere with daily work. Leaves the parts in healthful, normal condition. Requires ten minutes daily.

Amusements

"Sweet Lavender" at Princess

Sir Arthur Wing Pinero's "Sweet Lavender," one of the English dramatist's most appealing plays, will be seen at the Princess today. It is a Mary Miles Minter starring production for Realart.

Realart has done a very splendid thing in preserving practically intact the full, wholesome savour of the original play. Some slight changes were necessary to adapt the English story to American audiences but they are of a nature that add rather than detract. A delightful comedy is the result.

Miss Minter shows that she combines real ability with her beauty in the character of Lavender. The story concerns a girl whose happiness is menaced by her own father who, ignorant of her identity, refuses to allow her engagement to his stepson.

The famous character role of Phenyl is well interpreted by no less a personage than Theodore Roberts. Mr. Roberts gets the last ounce of "meat" from this very lovable part. Sylvia Ashton is excellent as usual in the role of a rich vulgarian. Harold Goodwin makes an attractively youthful college lover. In the role of Horace Weatherburn, the father, Milton Sills upholds his reputation as one of the best and most versatile players in filmdom.

Sessue Hayakawa Here Today

The ancient Hindu belief that man is possessed of four bodies, the physical, the mental, the spiritual and the Budhic body, the latter being the only one allowed to enter "Nirvana", or Paradise, and that a man can at will cause his spiritual body to enter that of another person and control his actions and thoughts, plays an important part in "The Devil's Claim", a Robertson-Cole production starring the distinguished Nipponese, Sessue Hayakawa. The picture is being shown today at the Mystic Theatre.

"The Devil's Claim" is a fascinating tale of Oriental cunning and mystery, in which the central figure is Akbar Khan a Hindu novelist living in the Bohemian quarter of New York. When the story opens he is writing a novel which concerns a secret society of Hindus called "The Devil Worshipers".

"The Devil's Trademark," the sacred emblem of the society is discovered by Hassan Marouf an Americanized Hindu and archaeologist who is accompanied by his friend Salim in the search for the emblem. Eager to possess for himself the sacred emblem, Salim plans to kill his friend Hassan, but Hassan proves the quicker of the two and in the struggle for the possession of the emblem which follows, Salim is slain by Hassan.

As a punishment, Salim curses Hassan and causes his spirit to enter Hassan's body for one day every week. During the time that Hassan is under control of Salim's spirit, he loses his own identity and becomes the wicked, evil agent of the cunning Salim. Sessue Hayakawa plays both Akbar Khan, the novelist and Hassan Marouf, the Hindu in the picturization of the book.

Harding Elected by Greatest Popular Vote in U. S. History

erats 11, with five in doubt. Republican headquarters claim that 86 republicans had been elected to the house of the state legislature, five democrats, and eight contests still in doubt. They claim 38 to 40 state senators, giving them a working majority of 12 to 14.

Republican headquarters also claimed election of their 13 candidates for congress but the returns were slow in the congressional race and some doubt was expressed as to the result in the third district.

New York, Nov. 3.—With definite returns lacking from only a few states, Senator Warren G. Harding today had been swept into the presidency by the greatest popular vote in the history of American national politics.

Incomplete returns today gave Harding 372 electoral votes and Cox 137 with 22 doubtful.

As tabulations of returns were completed today, the Harding landslide was seen to be greater than it had appeared even last night when the great republican sweep from coast to coast became manifest.

The most optimistic predictions on the vote given by Republican Chairman Hays was exceeded in practically every incident. The vote swelled this morning to unprecedented proportions and made the democratic defeat appear all the more overwhelming.

Harding when he assumes the presidency March 4, 1921, will go into his office with a senate and house of representatives republican by a wide margin, according to returns to date. The republicans gained seats in both the upper and lower houses.

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 3—Further-republican gains were registered in Indiana as additional election returns came in today. Republican leaders continued to claim the state by 200,000.

Democrats had deserted their headquarters early today, leaving a sleepy boy to answer the telephone. They conceded the election of the republican slate in Indiana.

As returns continued to pile up in ratio to the results shown thus far, republicans claims will be justified.

In 1,659 out of 3,385 precincts in Indiana, Harding was given 393,324; Cox 280,485.

In the senatorial race Watson had 337,351 and Tom Taggart, de-

Watson and Taggart

(Indianapolis Star)

Such returns as are available, indicate that the promised scratching of Senator Watson for his competitor failed largely to materialize. Certain Indiana statesmen who are not themselves exactly household idols have worried themselves sick unnecessarily over Mr. Watson's unpopularity. He has plenty of votes to spare. Throughout his campaign Mr. Watson has maintained a commendable level of dignity and amity. There has been no questionable attack upon opponents or descent to cheap methods of self advertising or smart answers to criticism. His attitude has been dignified and his appeal has been made to reason and judgment upon governmental problems.

All of this may also be said of Mr. Taggart, who has lost again, through no fault of his own, but because of the terrific swing to the Republican ticket. His candidacy was at all times formidable, being preferred by large numbers, regardless of party, for his qualifications as a business man and his character as an upright, philanthropic and high-minded citizen, distinguished for unswerving patriotism and civic usefulness. The fine bearing he has maintained throughout the campaign has added to the esteem and confidence in which he is held and in defeat he has the good will and affection of all.

It must be said for Mr. Watson that since his elevation to the Senate he has sought diligently to achieve for himself the character of a faithful and useful public servant. The preferment shown him in the Senate testifies to the regard in which he is held there. Throughout the six years' term of which he is now assured he will be in a situation to be of very great service, especially to the business interests of the country, for which he has always stood valiantly in many ways. The new tax legislation will come largely under his supervision and he may be depended upon to act in accordance with the best judgment of the most approved Republican counsels.

Simple Sincerity Is One of
Harding's Outstanding Traits

By RAYMOND CLAPPER

(U. P. Staff Correspondent)

Marion, O. November 3—If Warren G. Harding, now president elect of the United States, had only been born in a log cabin—but he wasn't—and any truthfully intimate story about him must begin with the bold statement that he was born in a small frame house at Blooming Grove, a village near here, of poor but thrifty parents, his father being a struggling country doctor who rolled his own pills and treated horses as well.

The log cabin story was killed by Harding himself shortly after he was nominated for the presidency and the incident reveals more about the man who is to be the next president of the United States than could be told in a book. It illustrates the absence of any "front" about Harding and his simple sincerity, one of the outstanding traits of the man.

Just after the Chicago convention nominated Harding some of his ever enthusiastic workers stated the story that he was born in a log-cabin. It was getting a good running start when newspaper correspondents were called into Harding's office at Washington one day and given a short typewritten statement signed by the candidate, denying in toto the log cabin story.

"I don't like to spoil a good story for you boys," Harding said in explanation, "but the truth is I wasn't born in a log cabin at all. I wish I had been but alas it was only a frame house."

But there is a good story in Harding's spectacular rise anyway. Born in the obscurity of a straggling village in central Ohio, exactly fifty-five years ago yesterday, Harding, doing business on a shoestring most of the time has now reached the pinnacle to which only twenty-eight other men in the entire history of this nation have climbed.

It will be difficult for anyone to really believe that the man and woman whose names are on millions of lips today are just plain, ordinary middle western Americans who have spent their lives in a small town struggling for a place among the substantial citizens of the locality.

Nevertheless they are the people novelists seek to describe as the typical Americans, prosperous in a small way, intelligent and fairly well educated, though not so well read perhaps, knowing a little about many commonplace matters, extremely hospitable and generous severely conventional regular attendants at church and lodge meetings, fond of fried chicken and of sitting in rocking chairs on the front porch afterward.

There you have the Hardings. They haven't changed much with the good fortune that has recently come to them. It is true that Mrs. Harding used to work in her own kitchen and that now they have a cook, but her husband still has his clothes darned to make them wear longer, he shaves himself with an old fashioned razor, his shirt cuffs are turned when they get frayed on one side, and Mrs. Harding herself wears a hat clear through the season and sometimes longer for she was wearing her last summer straw hat in October this year.

The Hardings live in a big green house with a large white front porch on Mount Vernon Avenue, a quiet shady street here. It is a good street but not in the most exclusive section of Marion, if a town of thirty thousand could have an exclusive section.

There is nothing fancy about the Harding home, inside or out. It is far less pretentious than those of most Marion merchants or citizens of similar standing. The Hardings do not "dress for dinner," nor have tea in the afternoon, Harding likes waffles for breakfast and a well done beefsteak for dinner. There is refinement at their table but no "style" and no stranger would ever be embarrassed by a confusing array of forks and spoons. They live just like other Americans of moderate means. Mrs. Harding looks after her potted plants and the senator makes frequent rounds of inspection after breakfast or lunch to see that there are no loose boards on the back yard walk or to examine the screen door hinges that have been squeaking for several days.

One thing every visitor to Marion discovers the first thing—the Hardings are just what they are, as Mrs. Harding puts it.

Harding's closest friends have often expressed regret that the campaign photographs of the candidate showed a rather stern visage. They probably portray quite faithfully the features of Harding as he appears in the midst of an earnest speech. But there is another Harding which shows far more warmth sitting around the dinner table while political troubles are left outside for the moment. Then the genial, easy going, good humored Harding holds sway. Pushing back his chair a little from the table, he will light one of his favorite long rought stogies and look reminiscent.

"Warren, why don't you tell them how you got fired from your first newspaper job," Mrs. Harding will say turning a twinkling eye on her guests.

And Warren, rather reluctantly begins by saying, "Oh, they wouldn't be interested in that."

Then he tells about his first job as a reporter on the old Marion Mirror, a zealously Democratic paper. Harding, just eighteen, wrote up births, marriages, deaths, met all trains, and did politics on the side. His boss, busy in politics, was out of town a good deal and let Warren write the editorials warning him that they must be fervently Democratic in tone.

You know some of the best editorials I ever wrote were for that Democratic paper," Harding says. But all the while he was an active Republican worker, though not old enough to vote. He wore one of the large Blaine campaign hats adopted by Republican partisans during that campaign. He got away with it for a while, but local Democrats began to complain to Harding's boss about him allowing a Republican to get out his paper. Then Harding made his first political decision. It was either discard the Blaine hat or be fired. He was fired.

"I have been a strong party man ever since," Harding adds.

Then you may hear Harding tell how he and a boy chum between them borrowed $300 and bought the Marion Star after the sheriff had taken charge of the property. They printed it one page at a time on a small job press—and it was the first, small town daily in Ohio, Harding says. But the partnership broke up when the telephone was introduced in Marion. Harding, who had to get all the advertising and collect news as well, wanted to put in a telephone to save time. His partner said it was a silly idea. Harding ordered it in anyway and the partner coming back to the office was so angry that he demanded dissolution of the partnership and insisted on being put in salary.

"I put him on the payroll at nine dollars a week," Harding said. "And he was better off than I was then."

But the young publisher struggled along, setting up his own type often, writing all the news and soliciting most of the advertising. When the Star grew to need a circulation manager, Mrs. Harding dropped her housework and took the job. She went down to the Star office every day, kept the books of all subscribers, collected for the paper, hired the carriers and supervised the distribution of the paper from

HUMOROUS HANDICAPS
AGAINST RACE SUICIDE

In these days of women in politics and their privileges of the ballot, some of the prosy pessimists predict the end of married life and home making—with race suicide as a result. But, our film friend, The Literary Digest "Topics of the Day" has shown many humorous refutations of this theory on the motion picture screen all over the U. S. A. Even the pessimistic predictors of race suicide will be forced to smile at the following newspaper wit screened in "Topics":

How Can a Loafer Take a Vacation?

the time it came out of the press. "In those days I knew every subscriber of the Star and I knew just how much he owed on his paper bill," Mrs. Harding said one day. She also had her troubles with the newsboys. One day a youngster ran a small electric wire around the press to the rack where Mrs. Harding pulled out the papers.

She started on the trail of the offending youngster who had given her trouble before and, having obtained his mother's proxy after an altercation some weeks before, promptly collared the young man and turned him over her knees and spanked him. A few Sundays ago fifty former newsboys of the Star, all now prosperous young men scattered in many cities, came to Marion. They were gathered on the front porch with Senator and Mrs. Harding.

"Where is the boy Mrs. Harding spanked?" Senator Harding asked. Five hands went up in the crowd.

That is Mrs. Harding's way. She is frank, outspoken, and the most inveterate campaigner of the two. She appears to really enjoy shaking hands during a political affair and round her home here she is out from early morning until after dark greeting visitors.

Her good humored manner has made a hit with political audiences throughout the campaign.

When Harding went to the Senate, Mrs. Harding set up a home in Washington, but to the consternation of many of the ladies of the senate she continued to invite her old friends in regardless of their social standing in the "senatorial circle." If she runs true to form, anyone in Marion probably will be able to wander into the White House and get an invitation to stay to dinner.

Mrs. Harding has what they call "gumption" out here in Ohio. In her youth she was a skilled horsewoman her father, who was a wealthy business man here, having owned a fine string of riding horses. Now she takes most of her recreation in the form of automobile riding. That is one reason Hardings never travel on the train if good roads are available. Most of the trips to and from Washington are by motor and all trips in Ohio are by that method.

Harding played tennis years ago, but relies on golf recreation now. Neither reads a great deal but they are fond of the theatre and especially the more serious plays.

Harding has been primarily a newspaper publisher during his entire manhood, although he has carried in politics as a sideline most of the time. Identified with the Ohio Republican machinery since he became a voter, Harding, however, has held office only a comparatively short time. He was in the state senate from 1899 to 1903, was lieutenant governor the next two years, ran for governor but was defeated, and went to the Senate in 1914. He rounds out his first term as U. S. senator March 4 next, just as he steps into the White House.

Harding was a political protege of the late Senator Foraker of Ohio and was allied with his faction for many years. But by a strange twist of fate, Harding ran against Foraker for the senatorial nomination in 1914 and won, ending the public career of the famous Ohio boss who had brought him up in the political world.

Harding has a reputation throughout the country as being a second McKinley. He himself has often said he saw little resemblance, yet close friends of both see a parallel in their willingness to be guided by advice, and in some of their manners. Both have grave countenances and probably no one ever slapped either on the back.

Under the Harding administration, it is likely that the "great man" theory of the president which has prevailed since Roosevelt's dominating personality reigned at the White House, will disappear at least for the time.

Those closest to Harding say he does not consider himself a powerful dominating figure in the sense that President Wilson or Theodore Roosevelt felt themselves. His big task in the next four years, as he is said to see it, is that of harmonizing the best brains of the country and focusing them on national problems. He feels deeply, his friends say, that there is a great crisis in world affairs which will continue until the league of nations question is settled. In that crisis, Harding expects to use the best mind of the heads of the country, as he puts it, an effort to work out a solution which the entire nation will approve. He does not step into the presidency with the intention of making his will prevail in the nation's affairs beyond a certain point. His conception of the presidency is the reverse of President Wilson's, according to those who know him best.

Harding believes that the office is largely an executive one and that Congress, not the president, is the channel through which public opinion should express itself. If this analysis made by his close friends is correct, Harding, as president will be inclined to lay back and permit Congress to shape the nation's policies, using his own powers only to carry the expressed wishes of Congress into effect. This is his theory, but whether the difficulties of practical politics will permit him to carry it out, only time can show.

Close observers predict a rather stormy four years for Harding. Although he held his party together through the campaign, there is the possibility of a drift within the organization over the league issue. If the tariff issue is raised, there will be an opportunity for more trouble. Senator Harding, more than anyone else, possibly, recognizes this situation and is determined that his big contribution to the present situation shall be an effort to harmonize divergent views and bring them together on a compromise course which will not lean to the extreme either way.

Harding has an ability, which he often reveals to those close to him, of standing back and taking stock of himself. On these occasions the extreme simplicity of the man stands out. It is attributed in part to his simple early life.

His earliest sport was diving into the swimming pool at Caledonia where he moved as a small boy. About the time he got into long trousers he learned to play the cornet and joined the village band. Harding turned his horn playing to account in another way too. Mrs. Harding, before she was married, gave piano lessons to boys and girls in Marion. During their courtship Harding often brought his cornet over and played duets, with the future Mrs. Harding at the piano.

They have no children and there are no pets around the Harding house at present. Both are fond of dogs and kept a big collie for years, but one day it mysteriously took ill and died. Since then they have had no dog. Mrs. Harding tells several stories about her husband's love of animals. When Warren was a small boy he had a little pug nosed pup that one day got in the way of a street car and lost a hind leg. Harding would not permit the animal to be killed and carried him over to his father's office. Doctor Harding finally yielded to the pleas of the boy and sewed up the stump of the dog's leg. After it had healed, young Harding whittled out a wooden leg for the pup and it hobbled around Marion for several years on the peg leg that Warren Harding had made.

Senator Harding is a Baptist and Mrs. Harding is a Methodist. Harding is an Elk and a member of the Masonic order. He smokes cigars,

WORTH WEIGHT IN GOLD, SAYS WOMAN

Engineer States He Can Do Twice as Much Work Since He Began Taking Tanlac.

"Tanlac has put me in shape to where I feel like a different man," said James Otis Weaver, 123 South Eighth St., West Terre Haute, Ind., who is employed as engineer by the Western Indiana Gravel Co.

"For the past five years I had suffered terribly with stomach trouble. Most everything I ate disagreed with me, would sour on my stomach, form gas and cause belching. I always had a mean, bitter taste in my mouth and it was hard for me to retain anything on my stomach. I had such severe headaches that I would sometimes become dazed, and I often had such dizzy spells that I would have to get down off my engine. I was dreadfully nervous and seemed to be getting weaker all the time."

"I have taken only three bottles of Tanlac and this medicine has done me more real good than everything else I have taken put together. I am hungry all the time and I can eat just anything I want without suffering afterwards. I am never troubled with headaches, dizzy spells or nervousness and my stomach is in perfect condition. I am so much stronger now that I really believe I can do twice as much work as I could before taking Tanlac. I feel just like I have taken a new lease on life. Tanlac has been worth its weight in gold to me."

and cigarettes, but prefers to dry smoke a long black stogy.

Harding is simple in his dress, wearing the conventional frock coat only when formal occasions demand it. At other times he wears an easy fitting two button sack coat. Harding never affects anything freakish in the way of string neckties or shaggy hair. His hair is always neatly trimmed and he wears turn down collars with neatly tied cravats—purple being his favorite color.

COUNCIL MEETS TONIGHT

Regular Session Tonight Instead of Last Night

The City council will meet to-night in regular session, owing to the election being held yesterday, and the councilmen were anxious to hear the returns. A short session was held last night in which the payrolls were allowed so that the city employees could get paid this morning. Several important matters will come before the council tonight, including the discussion of taking off the two crossing watchmen at the Sexton and Arthur street crossing on the C. I. & W. railroad. At their last meeting the railroad presented a petition in the form of an ordinance, and it was left over until this meeting.

It is expected that several people in that section of the city will appear tonight to remonstrate against any favorable action on the petition.

ELLIOTT IS GIVEN MARGIN OF 10,000

The ballots were badly scratched. Rowland H. Hill of Carthage, republican candidate for joint senator from Hancock, Rush and Decatur counties, won out over James T. Arbuckle of this city, by a plurality of 2,382 votes.

Decatur gave Hill 5,439 votes and Arbuckle 4,038; Hancock gave Hill 4,437 and Arbuckle 4,771, and Rush county gave Hill 5,999 and Arbuckle 4,684.

Many strange things happened in the different counties in the sixth district, and the following dispatches from the county seat towns will be of interest.

RICHMOND—The republicans registered a big plurality in Wayne county, with the votes being between 4,200 and 4,400. The county ticket followed closely with the state and national ticket and official returns from the 66 precincts were not tabulated at one o'clock this afternoon, although the figures received were from the precincts reporting to republican headquarters.

LIBERTY—Union county went republican by an average of 500 plurality. In the congressional race, Elliott's plurality over Yarling was 655 votes. The final count was El-

The Best Advice FOR MOTHERS

ELGIN, ILLS.—"I was weak, nervous and run-down after motherhood, and was advised to take the 'Favorite Prescription.' I took about five bottles while nursing my baby and he seemed to improve as much as I did. My appetite was normal once more and I was able to sleep at night, and became strong and well. I would never hesitate in recommending Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription to all young mothers who need just such a tonic for they will be benefited as I have been."—MRS. CARRIE HILL, 314 Dundee Ave.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a remedy that any ailing woman can safely take, because it is prepared from roots, does not contain alcohol or narcotics. All druggists.

Send 10 cents for trial package of "Favorite Prescription Tablets" to Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel in Buffalo, N. Y., or write for advice. (Advertisement.)

NEWCASTLE—Richard N. Elliott was given a plurality of 2,963 votes over William Yarling in the congressional race in Henry county. Elliott polled 8,837 votes; Yarling 5,818 votes; Carmichael 56 votes.

The entire county averaged a plurality of 3,000 for the republican party.

SHELBYVILLE—An error in the tabulation of votes here this afternoon placed the republican majority in the congressional race at either 605 or 705, and an effort was being made to trace down the correct number. It is thought that the correct number will be a plurality of 605 votes.

Four republicans were also elected on the county ticket, which is an unusual thing in this county. Those elected were Japha Humphries, candidate for State Representative. He is the second republican to go to the state legislature in the history of Shelby county.

Elmer Bassett, republican candidate for prosecuting attorney also received a plurality of 1400 votes over his democratic opponent. Ray Sexton was elected sheriff on the republican ticket by 1200 votes and the fourth republican to be elected was a county commissioner.

BROOKVILLE—Returns were slow to come in here, but at noon today the vote of yesterday disclosed the fact that Franklin county slipped slightly from the staunch hold of the Democratic party. Vancamp, republican candidate for sheriff, is known to have been elected by a close plurality, and the election of a republican county treasurer is still in doubt. All county, state and national offices were hotly contested, and it is not believed that the Democrats carried the county by over 250 votes. This county usually goes strong for the democratic ticket.

GREENFIELD—Hancock county, which is normally 500 democratic, yesterday showed about 300 to 400 democratic. Elliott polled 4451 and Yarling 4787 votes in the congressional race. Yarling, democratic candidate's plurality was 336 votes.

GREENSBURG—Decatur county, while not in the Sixth District, went republican with an average plurality of 1600 votes, giving Watson a plurality of 1605, and Harding 1618. In the congressional race in this district, John S. Benham, republican candidate from Benham, polled a plurality 1557. For joint senator from Rush, Hancock and this county, Hill won out over Arbuckle by a plurality of 1401 votes. Hill, republican polled 5,439 and Arbuckle 4,038.

TIED IN ONE PRECINCT
There was one tie in Rush county Tuesday. Phil Wilk, republican, and Homer Nash, democrat, rivals for the county auditor's office, each polled 188 votes in the sixth precinct in Rushville.

BABY DIES THIS AFTERNOON.

Ruth Marie, seven-months old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Brown, colored, died this afternoon shortly after two o'clock at their residence in East Seventh street. The baby was ill for a few weeks, as the proper kind of nourishment could not be found, and physicians strived hard to save its life. The child is survived by the parents and three sisters. Mr. Brown, father of the deceased, is custodian at the Peoples National Bank building.

Dayton, Ohio, Nov. 3—Governor James M. Cox today sent his congratulations to Senator Warren G. Harding, thus formally conceding his defeat. His message follows:

"In the spirit of Americanism I accept the decision of the majority tender of the defeated candidate, my congratulations and pledge, as a citizen, my support to the executive authority in whatever emergency might arise."

CALVIN COOLIDGE

SCHERVEE STUDIOS

Boston, Nov. 3.—Calvin Coolidge, vice-president elect, former "law and order" governor of Massachusetts is just what his name implies—sturdy son of New England, unassuming, almost taciturn, endowed with a singleness of purpose and the determination that gave his ancestors, John and Mary Coolidge, courage to make themselves a home in the wilderness of forest land in Massachusetts in 1630.

Born on a farm, the son of a prosperous farmer near Plymouth, Vermont, Calvin Coolidge spent his youth much as any other farmer's son, in doing the chores about the farm. His ambitions, however, did not lead him to follow in the steps of his father, and the wisdom of one who understands, encouraged and assisted young Coolidge in his plans to go to college.

Coolidge was born on Independence Day 1872, a coincidence which admirers say gave him the singleness of purpose and Yankee obduracy characteristic of the man. His story and affairs of government subjects of intense interest to Coolidge even when a boy. He specialized in these subjects at Amherst College and graduated in the class of 1895. In his senior year he won honors, a gold medal offered by Sons of the American Revolution for the best essay by an undergraduate of an American college, on principles of the War for American Independence.

After studying law for less than two years in a small office at Northampton, Mass., Coolidge was admitted to the bar. He took a prominent part in the city government, being elected to the city council, and later was elected to the Massachusetts House of Representatives. He was mayor of Northampton in 1910 and 1911, and later was elected to the state senate in which he served four years. His participation in the government of his state was the first step in Coolidge's political career. After serving in the senate, he was elected lieutenant-governor and held office for three years until he was elected governor in 1919. He was re-elected in 1920.

His firm stand for law and order during the police strike in Boston brought Coolidge national recognition, and was the most significant incident in his career and the first step toward the place of honor to which he has been elected.

Coolidge does not answer the description of the popular conception of a politician. He is reserved even shy. He is not a good public speaker—his voice being colorless and seldom rises above a certain note. It is what Coolidge has to say and the very apparent air of personal conviction that holds his audiences and makes up for what he lacks in tricks of oratory. As a politician he showed none of the traditional traits—bluster and extravagant promises—nor did he indulge in bitter personalities. His criticism is calculated to be constructive rather than destructive and he propounds his ideas of government upon his principle that "there will come out of government what is put into it."

"Cal" as Coolidge is known to his close friends, whether it be at his home at Northampton or "resting" at the old homestead near Plymouth is the type of home-loving man who tinkers about the household. He still can plough a furrow straight and clean, milk a cow and toss hay with the best of them.

At his home in a two family house the other side of which is occupied by a professor, Calvin Coolidge, frequently elected to wash dishes, dust the parlor and "tend" the furnace. He is also proud that he can cook "middling well."

It was while studying law in Northampton that Coolidge met his wife, then Miss Grace A. Goodhue, of Burlington, Vermont. Miss Goodhue was teaching school in Northampton and lived directly across the street from the boarding house in which Coolidge maintained a small room filled with ponderous books of law and volumes of history. He was anything but a "ladies' man" and it was months after he first saw the girl that was to become his wife, that he was introduced to her. It was long months after the meeting that he finally gathered courage to "pop the question". They were married in 1905.

Coolidge looks forward to taking his place as vice-president as an active worker in helping carry out the policies of the new administration.

AN APARTMENT HOUSE TO WELCOME FAMILIES

Husband and Wife Barred Unless They Have a Child or Child-dren, is a New Idea

IS STRICTLY MODERN TOO

Indianapolis, Nov. 3.—The childless family, long blessed by the discriminating landlord, will not be admitted to apartments in a new apartment building being erected in this city. The couple having a kid or kids will come into their own.

There will be a kindergarten in everything. The walls and floors will be reinforced to make them as nearly sound proof as possible to protect the slumber of the neighbors from the yells of a colicky youngster.

To the applicant for an apartment in this building, the question will be put: "Have you children?" An answer in the affirmative will be the open sesame.

The building is being put up by the E. G. Spink interest, owners of a large number of apartment buildings in this city. Mr. Spink declared he has been forced to bar children from his other apartments by complaints from tenants, but that now his dream for an apartment building where children will be welcomed is being realized.

The new building is being designed with special view to the safety of children, he said.

CORONER FILES VERDICT

Dr. J. M. Lee, county coroner, has filed his verdict with the county clerk, on the investigation of the Ned Abercrombie death. The report states, "The accidental death of Ned Abercrombie, who was killed by an I. & C. traction car on the evening of October 27, 1920, I find that the nature of wounds received resulted from the body being crushed under the wheels of the traction car and death was instantaneous.

Spectacles.

We are told that the ancients had no spectacles. Roger Bacon, an English scholar of the thirteenth century, is said to have first pointed out that old persons with weak eyes would see letters better by reading through a plano-convex lens, but the credit of first showing the world how to use spectacles is given to Alessandro di Spina, an Italian monk, who died in Pisa in 1313.

BETTER SCHOOLS CAMPAIGN NOV. 7

Object of Campaign is to Arouse Citizens to Realization That Indiana No Longer Leads

MINISTERS TO CO-OPERATE

Mr. Hines and District Campaign Managers Will Have Charge of Campaign in Districts

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 3.—The state wide campaign for better schools is scheduled to be opened Sunday Nov. 7, when all ministers have been asked to preach for the better schools.

The object of the campaign is to arouse the citizens of the state to the realization that Indiana no longer leads in education as it has in the past. The recent Russell Sage Foundation report ranked Indiana seventeenth among the states in educational efficiency and leaders of the drive are determined to take immediate steps to improve the rating.

Chambers of Commerce and various other organizations throughout the state will assist the state department of instruction in their drive.

Special legislation is needed to improve the efficiency of the Indiana Public school system and this will be advocated throughout the state in the hope that the next session of the legislature will enact progressive school laws.

"Many things need yet to be done in regard to our rural schools," said L. N. Hines, superintendent of Public Instruction. "The efficient and up to date rural schools will help prevent the drift of the country children to the city schools. For the first time in the history of the U. S. the census will probably show that there are more people in the cities than there are in the country. If the people are to be held in the country they must have a good chance to educate their children as they would have in the cities."

District campaign managers will have charge of the campaign in their districts and the campaign as a whole will be in charge of Mr. Hines.

CORN HUSKING BEGINS IN EARNEST IN COUNTY

Much Too Early Wise Farmers Say to Venture Anything Like Close Prediction of Yield

QUALITY IS DISAPPOINTING

The last major task of the farmer's autumn, the corn husking, has begun in earnest. It has been going in slow and cautious fashion in the valley lands for the last two weeks but no great amount of corn was piled up until last week. Now the danger of heating, which is a very real one when corn has much sap remaining in it, is believed to be past.

It is much too early, wise farmers say, to venture anything like a close prediction as to the county's yield. Some of them do say, however, that while the yield in bushels will be large, the quality is a little disappointing, at least in many fields. It is found that the ripening of the grain, in the fine, dry and frequently hot weather of late September and early October was a little too swift. It dried the grain at such speed that, in some instances at least, it lacked the solidity and weight it had last year; it comes near to being chaffy, and is less excellent for feeding. Yet, the certainty of hundreds of thousands of bushels of fine grain is too plain to be denied.

Under the spell of the late rains, acres of wheat which had caused their owners much anxiety until then, have sprung up. That some fields were damaged by the prolonged drouth is known but it is now the impression that the county's wheat crop, so far as its start is concerned, is, considered as a whole, in very good condition.

SCOPE OF G. O. P. VICTORY GROWS

HARDING ELECTED BY GREATEST POPULAR VOTE IN U.S. HISTORY

HOLD ON SENATE TIGHTER

MAJORITY OF 100 IN HOUSE

(By United Press)

These returns showed that Harding has been elected president by the greatest popular vote ever announced in the history of American politics and the largest electoral vote ever rolled up by a republican candidate.

They will have topped the heaviest majority of approximately 100 votes in the house.

Republican governors were elected in every state with the exception of those of the "solid south."

Harding's electoral vote has reached 372 with indications that the doubtful states may carry the figures to the 400 mark.

Plurality In State Is Estimated 150,000

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 3.—The republican landslide swept Indiana ticket in every office from president down to the legislature.

Returns from nearly two-thirds of the 3,385 precincts in the state indicated a republican plurality of nearly 150,000. It appeared that the precincts heard from in the gubernatorial race, McCray was leading the ticket in Indiana. Harding was averaging about one vote a precinct behind McCray and Watson was re-elected to the senate by about one vote behind Harding.

Incomplete returns have been received from nearly all of the 92 counties. Some of them were complete.

Indications are that the republicans carried 76 counties, the democrats 16.

CALIFORNIA GOES FOR HARDING BY 300,000

San Francisco, Calif., Nov. 3.—Politicians today estimated Harding may roll up a plurality of 300,000 over Cox in California as compared with the 3,000 California plurality on which swept Wilson into the presidency four years ago.

Returns from 2,371 precincts out of a total of 6,177 in the state, many of which were incomplete, gave Harding 185,612; Cox 66,616.

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 3.—Harding and the entire republican state ticket won in Missouri by approxately 25,000, according to estimates based on incomplete returns early today. Senator Spencer was re-elected by 40,000.

Denver, Colo., Nov. 3.—Complete

ELLIOT IS GIVEN MARGIN OF 10,000

CARTHAGE MAN IS ELECTED

The Sixth District put across the republican ticket with an estimated plurality of 10,000 votes.

In the entire district only two counties showed a Democratic plurality, and in these two the party showed a loss over the usual number of democratic votes. In Franklin county, always democratic by a large majority, it was not expected to be over 250, and the offices were in a close race, with a victory for the republican sheriff. In Hancock county, normally democratic by 500 votes, yesterday showed about 300 plurality over the republicans.

Shelbyville also turned the tables yesterday, and elected four men on the republican county ticket, each with big pluralities, showing that confident of his re-election, his plurality exceeded his estimate, which he had placed at between 75,000 and 85,000.

Before leaving for Indianapolis this morning, he stated: "I again renew my obligations to the good people of Rush county for the magnificent manner in which they have again expressed their confidence in me. I cannot adequately express my gratitude in words, but shall attempt to show it in the future by deeds."

Early last night and all day today he received congratulatory messages from people all over the United States. Senator Watson also sent messages to Senator Harding and other republican victors.

JAMES E. WATSON

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 3—Senator James Eli Watson re-elected by a heavy plurality on the republican ticket issued the following statement today:

"The president asked for a 'great and solemn referendum' and he got it. It was surely a 'great one' for the republicans and certainly a 'solemn one' for the democrats."

COUNTY VOTE IS A LANDSLIDE

votes and his opponent, 6082, giving the former a margin of 510.

Senator Watson ran very close to the leader of the national ticket, Senator Harding, who was given a plurality of 1600 votes by Rush county. Although the vote for Harding was larger than that cast for Warren T. McCray, governor-elect, the latter received a plurality of two more than the presidential candidate here.

Next to Judge Sparks, Representative Richard N. Elliott polled the largest vote of any candidate for which Rush county voted Tuesday. He received 6139 votes, but his plurality was only 1547 due to the heavy vote cast for his opponent.

The returns were not as slow coming in as it was expected they would be, due to the fact that the women voting almost doubled the vote. The vote was delivered to the county election commission at about the customary rate, though nearly twice as many ballots were cast as in any previous election.

The board would have had the vote tabulated much sooner but for the fact that it was delayed by the returns from Jackson township not being delivered to the officials until six o'clock this morning. The officials of the Jackson township election board engaged in a wrangle over the challenging of absent voters' ballots and spent most of the night debating the proposition.

The prohibitionists, socialists, single-taxers and the farm labor party did not offer any serious opposition in this county, though all of these tickets were on the ballot.

The socialists polled a maximum of 36 votes, this number being cast for their candidates for governor and senator. Eugene V. Debs, the party's candidate for president, who is sojourning in the federal penitentiary at Atlanta, Georgia, was scratched by one socialist and received only 35 votes.

The farm labor party's candidates for president, senator and governor polled just one vote each. That vote was recorded in the second precinct of Anderson township. This party's candidate for congress, Arthur A. Carmichael, however, found more favor with the voters of Rush county and received nine votes. Not a single vote was cast for the single tax party here.

The candidates for state office on the republican ticket received approximately the same pluralities as the county candidates. George Delaherty, democratic candidate for treasurer of state, ran nearly one hundred ahead of the other democratic candidates on the state ticket in this county, on account of being related in Rushville and having many friends here.

Delaherty received 4561 votes against 6001 for his opponent, Orr Davies of Kokomo. The vote on the state ticket here was as follows:

For lieutenant-governor, Brance (Rep.) 6089; Foster (Dem.) 4474.
For secretary of state, Jackson (Rep.) 6097; Wagner (Dem.) 4465.
For auditor of state, Oliver (Rep.) 6091; Hughes (Dem.) 4471.
For attorney general, Lesh (Rep.) 6094; Sunkel (Dem.) 4467.
For superintendent of public instruction, Hines (Rep.) 6098; McIntosh (Dem.) 4469.

For judge of the supreme court third district, Ewbank (Rep.) 6094; Felt (Dem.) 4472; fifth district, Travis (Rep.) 6093; Bowser (Dem.) 4472.

For judge of the appellate court first division, Bateman (Rep.) 6091; Swan (Dem.) 4472; second division, Daussman (Rep.) 6091; Reidelbus (Dem.) 4474.

For reporter of the supreme court, Adams (Rep.) 6092; Unger (Dem.) 4473.

GOITRE

Caused Terrible Choking for Richmond Lady, Relieved by Home Treatment

Note: It would be illegal to publish these statements if they were not true.

This article was copied from the Richmond, Ind., Item: "Mrs. Al Daws, 430 Main St., this city, says: 'My goitre caused me to have terrible choking spells. One night I awoke and my throat was almost closed, and if I had not had instant medical attention I would have died. I could not lie down. Had to sleep in a chair or propped up with pillows. The throbbing and palpitation was terrible. This has been relieved by Sorbol Quadruple, and I can now lie flat on my back and very seldom feel choked. If you wish, you may use my letter; I am glad to tell my experience personally or by letter.'

Sorbol Quadruple comes in small bottles containing enough for most cases. It will not stain or irritate. Does not interfere with daily work. Leaves the parts in healthful, normal condition. Requires ten minutes daily.

Amusements

"Sweet Lavender" at Princess

Sir Arthur Wing Pinero's "Sweet Lavender," one of the English dramatist's most appealing plays, will be seen at the Princess today. It is a Mary Miles Minter starring production for Realart.

Realart has done a very splendid thing in preserving practically intact the full, wholesome savour of the original play. Some slight changes were necessary to adapt the English story to American audiences but they are of a nature that add rather than detract. A delightful comedy is the result.

Miss Minter shows that she combines real ability with her beauty in the character of Lavender. The story concerns a girl whose happiness is menaced by her own father who, ignorant of her identity, refuses to allow her engagement to his stepson.

The famous character role of Phenyl is well interpreted by no less a personage than Theodore Roberts. Mr. Roberts gets the last ounce of "meat" from this very lovable part. Sylvia Ashton is excellent as usual in the role of a rich vulgarian. Harold Goodwin makes an attractively youthful college lover. In the role of Horace Weatherburn, the father, Milton Sills upholds his reputation as one of the best and most versatile players in filmdom.

Sessue Hayakawa Here Today

The ancient Hindu belief that man is possessed of four bodies, the physical, the mental, the spiritual and the Budhic body, the latter being the only one allowed to enter "Nirvana", or Paradise, and that a man can at will cause his spiritual body to enter that of another person and control his actions and thoughts, plays an important part in "The Devil's Claim", a Robertson-Cole production starring the distinguished Nipponese, Sessue Hayakawa. The picture is being shown today at the Mystic Theatre.

"The Devil's Claim" is a fascinating tale of Oriental cunning and mystery, in which the central figure is Akbar Khan, a Hindu novelist living in the Bohemian quarter of New York. When the story opens he is writing a novel which concerns a secret society of Hindus called "The Devil Worshippers".

"The Devil's Trademark," the sacred emblem of the society is discovered by Hassan Marouf an Americanized Hindu and archaeologist who is accompanied by his friend Salim in the search for the emblem. Eager to possess for himself the sacred emblem, Salim plans to kill his friend Hassan, but Hassan proves the quicker of the two and in the struggle for the possession of the emblem which follows, Salim is slain by Hassan.

As a punishment, Salim curses Hassan and causes his spirit to enter Hassan's body for one day every week. During the time that Hassan is under control of Salim's spirit, he loses his own identity and becomes the wicked, evil agent of the cunning Salim. Harding Elected by Greatest Popular Vote in U. S. History cents 11, with five in doubt. Republican headquarters claim that 86 republicans had been elected to the house of the state legislature, five democrats, and eight contests still in doubt. They claim 38 to 40 state senators, giving them a working majority of 12 to 14.

Republican headquarters also claimed election of their 13 candidates for congress but the returns were slow in the congressional race and some doubt was expressed as to the result in the third district.

New York, Nov. 3.—With definite returns lacking from only a few states, Senator Warren G. Harding today had been swept into the presidency by the greatest popular vote in the history of American national politics.

Incomplete returns today gave Harding 372 electoral votes and Cox 137 with 22 doubtful.

As tabulations of returns were completed today, the Harding land slide was seen to be greater than it had appeared even last night when the great republican sweep from coast to coast became manifest.

The most optimistic predictions on the vote given by Republican Chairman Hays was exceeded in practically every incident. The vote swelled this morning to unprecedented proportions and made the democratic defeat appear all the more overwhelming.

Harding when he assumes the presidency March 4, 1921, will go into his office with a senate and house of representatives republican by a wide margin, according to returns to date. The republicans gained seats in both the upper and lower houses.

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 3.—Further republican gains were registered in Indiana as additional election returns came in today. Republican leaders continued to claim the state by 200,000.

Democrats had deserted their headquarters early today, leaving a sleepy boy to answer the telephone. They conceded the election of the republican slate in Indiana.

As returns continued to pile up in ratio to the results shown thus far, republicans claims will be justified.

In 1,659 out of 3,385 precincts in Indiana, Harding was given 393,324; Cox 280,485.

In the senatorial race Watson had 337,351 and Tom Taggart, de-moerat 247,172, in returns from 1,504 precincts.

Warren McCray, republican gubernatorial candidate, had 333,351 in returns from 1,452 precincts and his democratic opponent, Carleton B. McCulloch, 243,272.

While the democrats still looked toward a possible congressional victory in the third district the republican chairman telephoned the state campaign headquarters here that the district would go republican by a plurality of 700 to Dunbar, the republican candidate.

Ancient Symbol.
The initials I. H. S., appearing on grave stones, in churches, etc., are the initial letters of the Latin phrase "Jesus Hominum Salvator," which means "Jesus the Savior of Man." This was originally written in Greek and was the first three letters of the name Jesus, but its origin was lost sight of through substituting the "S" for the Greek sign sigma. Then by mistaking the Greek H for the Latin H a significance was found for each letter.

Common Sense Greatest Gift.
Notwithstanding all our admiration for genius, and our longing for gifts, for talents, there is no endowment so envious as sound common sense. It may not soar into the heavens, nor fathom the deeps, nor achieve earth's wonderful successes, but it is the ballance wheel of life.

Watson and Taggart

(Indianapolis Star)

Such returns as are available, indicate that the promised scratching of Senator Watson for his competitor failed largely to materialize. Certain Indiana statesmen who are not themselves exactly household idols have worried themselves sick unnecessarily over Mr. Watson's unpopularity. He has plenty of votes to spare. Throughout his campaign Mr. Watson has maintained a commendable level of dignity and amity. There has been no questionable attack upon opponents or descent to cheap methods of self advertising or smart answers to criticism. His attitude has been dignified and his appeal has been made to reason and judgment upon governmental problems.

All of this may also be said of Mr. Taggart, who has lost again, through no fault of his own, but because of the terrific swing to the Republican ticket. His candidacy was at all times formidable, being preferred by large numbers, regardless of party, for his qualifications as a business man and his character as an upright, philanthropic and high-minded citizen, distinguished for unswerving patriotism and civic usefulness. The fine hearing he has maintained throughout the campaign has added to the esteem and confidence in which he is held and in defeat he has the good will and affection of all.

It must be said for Mr. Watson that since his elevation to the Senate he has sought diligently to achieve for himself the character of a faithful and useful public servant. The preferment shown him in the Senate testifies to the regard in which he is held there. Throughout the six years' term of which he is now assured he will be in a situation to be of very great service, especially to the business interests of the country, for which he has always stood valiantly in many ways. The new tax legislation will come largely under his supervision and he may be depended upon to act in accordance with the best judgment of the most approved Republican counsels.

Simple Sincerity Is One of
Harding's Outstanding Traits

By RAYMOND CLAPPER
(U. P. Staff Correspondent)

Marion, O., November 3.—If Warren G. Harding, now president-elect of the United States, had only been born in a log cabin—but he wasn't—and any truthfully intimate story about him must begin with the bold statement that he was born in a small frame house at Blooming Grove, a village near here, of poor but thrifty parents, his father being a struggling country doctor who rolled his own pills and treated horses as well.

The log cabin story was killed by Harding himself shortly after he was nominated for the presidency and the incident reveals more about the man who is to be the next president of the United States than could be told in a book. It illustrates the absence of any "front" about Harding and his simple sincerity, one of the outstanding traits of the man.

Just after the Chicago convention nominated Harding some of his ever enthusiastic workers stated the story that he was born in a log cabin. It was getting a good running start when newspaper correspondents were called into Harding's office at Washington one day and given a short typewritten statement signed by the candidate, denying in toto the log cabin story.

"I don't like to spoil a good story for you boys," Harding said in explanation, "but the truth is I wasn't born in a log cabin at all. I wish I had been but alas it was only a frame house."

But there is a good story in Harding's spectacular rise anyway. Born in the obscurity of a straggling village in central Ohio, exactly fifty-five years ago yesterday, Harding, doing business on a shoestring most of the time has now reached the pinnacle to which only twenty-eight other men in the entire history of this nation have climbed.

It will be difficult for anyone to really believe that the man and woman whose names are on millions of lips today are just plain, ordinary middle western Americans who have spent their lives in a small town struggling for a place among the substantial citizens of the locality. Nevertheless they are the people novelists seek to describe as the typical Americans, prosperous in a small way, intelligent and fairly well educated, though not so well read perhaps, knowing a little about many commonplace matters, extremely hospitable and generous severely conventional regular attendants at church and lodge meetings, fond of fried chicken and of sitting in rocking chairs on the front porch afterward.

There you have the Hardings. They haven't changed much with the good fortune that has recently come to them. It is true that Mrs. Harding used to work in her own kitchen and that now they have a cook, but her husband still has his clothes darned to make them wear longer, he shaves himself with an old fashioned razor, his shirt cuffs are turned when they get frayed on one side, and Mrs. Harding herself wears a hat clear through the season and sometimes longer for she was wearing her last summer straw hat in October this year.

The Hardings live in a big green house with a large white front porch on Mount Vernon Avenue, a quiet shady street here. It is a good street but not in the most exclusive section of Marion, if a town of thirty thousand could have an exclusive section.

There is nothing fancy about the Harding home, inside or out. It is far less pretentious than those of most Marion merchants or citizens of similar standing. The Hardings do not "dress for dinner," nor have tea in the afternoon. Harding likes waffles for breakfast and a well done beefsteak for dinner. There is refinement at their table but no "style" and no stranger would ever be embarrassed by a confusing array of forks and spoons. They live just like other Americans of moderate means. Mrs. Harding looks after her potted plants and the senator makes frequent rounds of inspection after breakfast or lunch to see that there are no loose boards on the back yard walk or to examine the screen door hinges that have been squeaking for several days.

One thing every visitor at Marion discovers the first thing—the Hardings are just what they are, as Mrs. Harding puts it.

Harding's closest friends have often expressed regret that the campaign photographs of the candidate showed a rather stern visage. They probably portray quite faithfully the features of Harding as he appears in the midst of an earnest speech. But there is another Harding which shows far more warmth sitting around the dinner table while political troubles are left outside for the moment. Then the genial, easy going, good humored Harding holds sway. Pushing back his chair a little from the table, he will light one of his favorite long rough cut cigars and look reminiscent.

"Warren, why don't you tell them how you got fired from your first newspaper job," Mrs. Harding will say turning a twinkling eye on her guests.

And Warren, rather reluctantly begins by saying, "Oh, they wouldn't be interested in that."

Then he tells about his first job as a reporter on the old Marion Mirror, a zealously Democratic paper. Harding, just eighteen, wrote up births, marriages, deaths, met all trains, and did politics on the side. His boss, busy in politics, was out of town a good deal and let Warren write the editorials warning him that they must be fervently Democratic in tone.

You know some of the best editorials I ever wrote were for that Democratic paper," Harding says. But all the while he was an active Republican worker, though not old enough to vote. He wore one of the large Blaine campaign hats adopted by Republican partisans during that campaign. He got away with it for a while, but local Democrats began to complain to Harding's boss about him allowing a Republican to get but his paper. Then Harding made his first political decision. It was either discard the Blaine hat or be fired. He was fired.

"I have been a strong party man ever since," Harding adds.

Then you may hear Harding tell how he and a boy chum between them borrowed $300 and bought the Marion Star after the sheriff had taken charge of the property. They printed it one page at a time on a small job press—and it was the first small town daily in Ohio, Harding says. But the partnership broke up when the telephone was introduced in Marion. Harding, who had to get all the advertising and collect news as well, wanted to put in a telephone to save time. His partner said it was a silly idea. Harding ordered it in anyway and the partner coming back to the office was so angry that he demanded dissolution of the partnership and insisted on being put in salary.

"I put him on the payroll at nine dollars a week," Harding said. "And he was better off than I was then."

But the young publisher struggled along, setting up his own type, often, writing all the news and soliciting most of the advertising. When the Star grew to need a circulation manager, Mrs. Harding dropped her housework and took the job. She went down to the Star office every day, kept the books of all subscribers, collected for the paper, hired the carriers and supervised the distribution of the paper from

How Can a Loafer Take a Vacation?

the time it came out of the press. "In those days I knew every subscriber of the Star and I knew just how much he owed on his paper bill," Mrs. Harding said one day. She also had her troubles with the newsboys. One day a youngster ran a small electric wire around the press to the rack where Mrs. Harding pulled out the papers.

She started on the trail of the offending youngster who had given her trouble before and, having obtained his mother's proxy after an altercation some weeks before, promptly collared the young man and turned him over her knees and spanked him. A few Sundays ago fifty former newsboys of the Star, all now prosperous young men scattered in many cities, came to Marion. They were gathered on the front porch with Senator and Mrs. Harding.

"Where is the boy, Mrs. Harding spanked?" Senator Harding asked. Five hands went up in the crowd. That is Mrs. Harding's way. She is frank, outspoken, and the most inveterate campaigner of the two. She appears to really enjoy slapping hands during a political affair and round her home here she is out from early morning until after dark greeting visitors.

Her good humored manner has made a hit with political audiences throughout the campaign.

When Harding went to the Senate, Mrs. Harding set up a home in Washington, but to the consternation of many of the ladies of the senate she continued to invite her old friends in regardless of their social standing in the "senatorial circle". If she runs true to form, anyone in Marion probably will be able to wander into the White House and get an invitation to stay to dinner.

Mrs. Harding has what they call "gumption" out here in Ohio. In her youth she was a skilled horsewoman her father, who was a wealthy business man here, having owned a fine string of riding horses. Now she takes most of her recreation in the form of automobile riding. That is one reason Hardings never travel on the train if good roads are available. Most of the trips to and from Washington are by motor and all trips in Ohio are by that method.

Harding played tennis years ago, but relies on golf recreation now. Neither reads a great deal but they are fond of the theatre and especially the more serious plays.

Harding has been primarily a newspaper publisher during his entire manhood, although he has carried in politics as a sideline most of the time. Identified with the Ohio Republican machinery since he became a voter, Harding, however, has held office only a comparatively short time. He was in the state senate from 1899 to 1903, was lieutenant governor the next two years, ran for governor but was defeated, and went to the Senate in 1914. He rounds out his first term as U. S. senator March 4 next, just as he steps into the White House.

Harding was a political protege of the late Senator Foraker of Ohio and was allied with his faction for many years. But by a strange twist of fate, Harding ran against Foraker for the senatorial nomination in 1914 and won, ending the public career of the famous Ohio boss who had brought him up in the political world.

Harding has a reputation throughout the country as being a second McKinley. He himself has often said he saw little resemblance, yet close friends of both see a parallel in their willingness to be guided by advice, and in some of their mannerisms. Both have grave countenances and probably no one ever slapped either on the back.

Under the Harding administration, it is likely that the "great man" theory of the president which has prevailed since Roosevelt's dominating personality reigned at the White House, will disappear at least for the time.

Those closest to Harding say he does not consider himself a powerful dominating figure in the sense that President Wilson or Theodore Roosevelt felt themselves. His big ask in the next four years, as he is said to see it, is that of harmonizing the best brains of the country and focusing them on national problems. He feels deeply, his friends say, that there is a great crisis in world affairs which will continue until the league of nations question is settled. In that crisis, Harding expects to use the best mind of the heads of the country, as he puts it, "an effort to work out a solution which the entire nation will approve. He does not step into the presidency with the intention of making his will prevail in the nation's affairs beyond a certain point. His conception of the presidency is the reverse of President Wilson's, according to those who know him best.

Harding believes that the office is largely an executive one and that Congress, not the president, is the channel through which public opinion should express itself. If this analysis made by his close friends is correct, Harding, as president will be inclined to lay back and permit Congress to shape the nation's policies, using his own powers only to carry the expressed wishes of Congress into effect. This is his theory, but whether the difficulties of practical politics will permit him to carry it out, only time can show.

Close observers predict a rather stormy four years for Harding. Although he held his party together through the campaign, there is the possibility of a drift within the organization over the league issue. If the tariff issue is raised, there will be an opportunity for more trouble. Senator Harding, more than anyone else, possibly, recognizes this situation and is determined that his big contribution to the present situation shall be an effort to harmonize divergent views and bring them together on a compromise course which will not lean to the extreme either way.

Harding has an ability, which he often reveals to those close to him, of standing back and taking stock of himself. On these occasions the extreme simplicity of the man stands out. It is attributed in part to his simple, early life.

His earliest sport was diving into the swimming pool at Caledonia where he moved as a small boy. About the time he got into long trousers he learned to play the cornet and joined the village band. Harding turned his horn playing to account in another way too. Mrs. Harding, before she was married, gave piano lessons to boys and girls in Marion. During their courtship Harding often brought his cornet over and played duets, with the future Mrs. Harding at the piano.

They have no children and there are no pets around the Harding house at present. Both are fond of dogs and kept a big collie for years, but one day it mysteriously took ill and died. Since then they have had no dog. Mrs. Harding tells several stories about her husband's love of animals. When Warren was a small boy he had a little pug dog pup that one day got in the way of a street car and lost a hind leg. Harding would not permit the animal to be killed and carried him over to his father's office. Doctor Harding finally yielded to the pleas of the boy and sewed up the stump of the dog's leg. After it had healed, young Harding whittled out a wooden leg for the pup and it hobbled around Marion for several years on the peg leg that Warren Harding had made.

Senator Harding is a Baptist and Mrs. Harding is a Methodist. Harding is an Elk and a member of the Masonic order. He smokes cigars.

WORTH WEIGHT IN GOLD, SAYS WOMAN

Engineer States He Can Do Twice as Much Work Since He Began Taking Tanlac.

"Tanlac has put me in shape to where I feel like a different man," said James Otis Weaver, 123 South Eighth St., West Terre Haute, Ind., who is employed as engineer by the Western Indiana Gravel Co.

"For the past five years I had suffered terribly with stomach trouble. Most everything I ate disagreed with me, would sour on my stomach, for gas and cause belching. I always had a mean, bitter taste in my mouth and it was hard for me to retain anything on my stomach. I had such severe headaches that I would sometimes become dazed, and I often had such dizzy spells that I would have to get down off my engine. I was dreadfully nervous and seemed to be getting weaker all the time."

"I have taken only three bottles of Tanlac and this medicine has done me more real good than everything else I have taken put together. I am hungry all the time and I can eat just anything I want without suffering afterwards. I am never troubled with headaches, dizzy spells or nervousness and my stomach is in perfect condition. I am so much stronger now that I really believe I can do twice as much work as I could before taking Tanlac. I feel just like I have taken a new lease on life. Tanlac has been worth its weight in gold to me."

Tanlac is sold in Rushville by F. B. Johnson, Co., in Milroy by Dallas Copper, in Manila by Geo. J. Inlow, in Arlington by Mrs. L. T. Davis, in Carthage by Otto C. McFarty, and in New Salem by Mrs. Jos. Hankins. R. E. 2-Adv.

Harding is simple in his dress, wearing the conventional frock coat only when formal occasions demand it. At other times he wears an easy fitting two button sack coat. His hair is always neatly trimmed and he wears turn down collars with neatly tied cravats—purple being his favorite color.

COUNCIL MEETS TONIGHT

Regular Session Tonight Instead of Last Night

The City council will meet tonight in regular session, owing to the election being held yesterday, and the councilmen were anxious to hear the returns. A short session was held last night in which the payrolls were allowed so that the city employees could get paid this morning. Several important matters will come before the council tonight, including the discussion of taking off the two crossing watchmen at the Sexton and Arthur street crossing on the C. I. & W. railroad. At their last meeting the railroad presented a petition in the form of an ordinance, and it was left over until this meeting.

It is expected that several people in that section of the city will appear tonight to remonstrate against any favorable action on the petition.

the ballots were badly scratched. Rowland H. Hill of Carthage, republican candidate for joint senator from Hancock, Rush and Decatur counties, won out over James T. Arbuckle of this city, by a plurality of 2,382 votes.

Decatur gave Hill 5,439 votes and Arbuckle 4,038; Hancock gave Hill 4,437 and Arbuckle 4,771, and Rush county gave Hill 5,999 and Arbuckle 4,684.

Many strange things happened in the different counties in the sixth district, and the following dispatches from the county seat towns will be of interest.

RICHMOND—The republicans registered a big plurality in Wayne county, with the votes being between 4,200 and 4,400. The county ticket followed closely with the state and national ticket and official returns from the 66 precincts were not tabulated at one o'clock this afternoon, although the figures received were from the precincts reporting to republican headquarters.

LIBERTY—Union county went republican by an average of 500 plurality. In the congressional race, Elliott's plurality over Yarling was 655 votes. The final count was El-

The Best Advice FOR MOTHERS

ELGIN, ILLS.—"I was weak, nervous and run-down after motherhood, and was advised to take the 'Favorite Prescription.' I took about five bottles while nursing my baby and he seemed to improve as much as I did. My appetite was normal once more and I was able to sleep at night, and became strong and well. I would never hesitate in recommending Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription to all young mothers who need just such a tonic for they will be benefited as I have been."

MRS. GARRIE HILL, 314 Dundee Ave.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a remedy that any ailing woman can safely take, because it is prepared from roots, does not contain alcohol or narcotics. All druggists.

NEWCASTLE—Richard N. Elliott was given a plurality of 2,963 votes over William Yarling in the congressional race in Henry county. Elliott polled 8,837 votes; Yarling 5,818 votes; Carmichael 56 votes. The entire county averaged a plurality of 3,000 for the republican party.

SHELBYVILLE—An error in the tabulation of votes here this afternoon placed the republican majority in the congressional race at either 695 or 705, and an effort was being made to trace down the correct number. It is thought that the correct number will be a plurality of 605 votes.

Four republicans were also elected on the county ticket, which is an unusual thing in this county. Those elected were Japha Humphries, candidate for State Representative. He is the second republican to go to the state legislature in the history of Shelby county.

Elmer Bassett, republican candidate for prosecuting attorney also received a plurality of 1400 votes over his democratic opponent. Ray Sexton was elected sheriff on the republican ticket by 1200 votes and the fourth republican to be elected was a county commissioner.

BROOKVILLE—Returns were slow to come in here, but at noon today the vote of yesterday disclosed the fact that Franklin county slipped slightly from the staunch hold of the Democratic party. Van-camp, republican candidate for sheriff, is known to, have been elected by a close plurality, and the election of a republican county treasurer is still in doubt. All county, state and national offices were hotly contested, and it is not believed that the Democrats carried the county by over 250 votes. This county usually goes strong for the democratic ticket.

GREENFIELD—Hancock county, which is normally 500 democratic, yesterday showed about 300 to 400 democratic. Elliott polled 4451 and Yarling 4787 votes in the congressional race. Yarling, democratic candidate's plurality was 336 votes.

GREENSBURG—Decatur county, while not in the Sixth District, went republican with an average plurality of 1600 votes, giving Watson a plurality of 1605, and Harding 1618. In the congressional race in this district, John S. Benham, republican candidate from Benham, polled a plurality 1557. For joint senator from Rush, Hancock and this county, Hill won out over Arbuckle by a plurality of 1401 votes. Hill, republican polled 5,439 and Arbuckle 4,038.

TIED IN ONE PRECINCT
There was one tie in Rush county Tuesday. Phil Wilk, republican, and Homer Nash, democrat, rivals for the county auditor's office, each polled 188 votes in the sixth precinct in Rushville.

BABY DIES THIS AFTERNOON.

Ruth Marie, seven-months old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Brown, colored, died this afternoon shortly after two o'clock at their residence in East Seventh street. The baby was ill for a few weeks, as the proper kind of nourishment could not be found, and physicians strived hard to save its life. The child is survived by the parents and three sisters. Mr. Brown, father of the deceased, is custodian at the Peoples National Bank building.

Dayton, Ohio, Nov. 3.—Governor James M. Cox today sent his congratulations to Senator Warren G. Harding, thus formally conceding his defeat. His message follows:

"In the spirit of Americanism I accept the decision of the majority tender of the defeated candidate, my congratulations and pledge, as a citizen, my support to the executive authority in whatever emergency might arise."

Harding's Running Mate In Republican Landslide

CALVIN COOLIDGE

SCHEREE STUDIOS

Boston, Nov. 3—Calvin Coolidge, vice-president elect, former "law order" governor of Massachusetts is just what his name implies—sturdy son of New England, unassuming, almost taciturn, endowed with a singleness of purpose and the determination that gave his ancestors, John and Mary Coolidge, courage to make themselves a home in the wilderness of forest land in Massachusetts in 1630. Born on a farm, the son of a prosperous farmer near Plymouth, Mass., Calvin Coolidge spent his youth much as any other farmer's son, in doing the chores about the farm. His ambitions, however, did not lead him to follow in the steps of his father, and the wisdom of one who understands, encouraged and assisted young Coolidge in his plans to go to college.

Coolidge was born on Independence Day 1872, a coincidence which admirers say gave him the singleness of purpose and Yankee obedience characteristic of the man. His story and affairs of government subjects of intense interest to Coolidge even when a boy. He specialized in these subjects at Amherst college and graduated in the class of 1895. In his senior year he won honors, a gold medal offered by Sons of the American Revolution for the best essay by an undergraduate of an American college, on the principles of the War for American Independence.

After studying law for less than two years in a small office at Northampton, Mass., Coolidge was admitted to the bar. He took a prominent part in the city government, being elected to the city council, and later was elected to the Massachusetts House of Representatives. He was mayor of Northampton in 1910 and 1911, and later was elected to the state senate in which he served four years. His participation in the government of his state was the first step in Coolidge's political career. After serving in the senate, he was elected lieutenant-governor and held office for three years until he was elected governor in 1919. He was re-elected in 1920.

His firm stand for law and order during the police strike in Boston brought Coolidge national recognition, and was the most significant incident in his career and the first step toward the place of honor to which he has been elected.

Coolidge does not answer the description of the popular conception of a politician. He is reserved even shy. He is not a good public speaker his voice being colorless and seldom rises above a certain note. It is what Coolidge has to say and the very apparent air of personal conviction that holds his audiences and makes up for what he lacks in tricks of oratory. As a politician he showed none of the traditional traits—bluster and extravagant promises—nor did he indulge in bitter personalities. His criticism is calculated to be constructive rather than destructive and he propounds his ideas of government upon his principle that "there will come out of government what is put into it."

"Cal" as Coolidge is known to his close friends, whether it be at his home at Northampton or "resting" at the old homestead near Plymouth is the type of home-loving man who tinkers about the household. He still can plough a furrow straight and clean, milk a cow and toss hay with the best of them.

At his home in a two family house the other side of which is occupied by a professor, Calvin Coolidge, frequently elected to wash dishes, dust the parlor and "tend" the furnace. He is also proud that he can cook "middling well."

It was while studying law in Northampton that Coolidge met his wife, then Miss Grace A. Goodhue, of Burlington, Vermont. Miss Goodhue was teaching school in Northampton and lived directly across the street from the boarding house in which Coolidge maintained a small room filled with ponderous books of law and volumes of history. He was anything but a "ladies' man" and it was months after he first saw the girl that was to become his wife, that he was introduced to her. It was long months after the meeting that he finally gathered courage to "pop the question". They were married in 1905.

Coolidge looks forward to taking his place as vice-president as an active worker in helping carry out the policies of the new administration.

Who said truth was stranger than fiction?

"YOU'RE FIRED," said the editor,
"UNLESS YOU can dig up,
A LIVE story today."
SO THE cub reporter,
DISAPPEARED FOR hours,
BUT WHEN he recovered,
FROM HIS trance, he had,
A STORY—here it is,
OUR DEPUTY constable,
WAS WAKENED by the phone,
AND A shrill voice cried,
"FOR THE love of Mike,
BEAT IT here quick,
AND NAIL a nut,
WHO'S TALKING wild,
IN THE cigar store."
THE LONG arm of the law,
PUT ON his pants,
SPED TO the scene,
AND AFTER a brief,
BUT TERRIFIC struggle,
MADE THE pinch,
AND WHEN interviewed,
BY OUR star reporter,
GAVE OUT this statement,
"HE'S A loony, all right,
THE ASYLUM says, by Heck,
THE WORST they ever had,
WHY THE poor nut,
CLAIMS HE can copy,
THE SECRET blend,
OF THE cigarettes,
THAT SATISFY."

NO—the blend can't be copied. It's one way of blending fine tobaccos—both Turkish and Domestic—that the other fellow can't get onto. That's why Chesterfields "satisfy," and that's why only Chesterfields can "satisfy."

AN APARTMENT HOUSE TO WELCOME FAMILIES

Husband and Wife Barred Unless They Have a Child or Child-dren, is a New Idea

IS STRICTLY MODERN TOO

Indianapolis, Nov. 3.—The childless family, long blessed by the discriminating landlord, will not be admitted to apartments in a new apartment building being erected in this city. The couple having a kid or kids will come into their own.

There will be a kindergarten in everything. The walls and floors will be reinforced to make them as nearly sound proof as possible to protect the slumber of the neighbors from the yells of a colicky youngster.

To the applicant for an apartment in this building, the question will be put: "Have you children?" An answer in the affirmative will be the open sesame.

The building is being put up by the E. G. Spink interest, owners of a large number of apartment buildings in this city. Mr. Spink declared he has been forced to bar children from his other apartments by complaints from tenants, but that now his dream for an apartment building where children will be welcomed is being realized.

The new building is being designed with special view to the safety of children, he said.

CORONER FILES VERDICT

Dr. J. M. Lee, county coroner, has filed his verdict with the county clerk, on the investigation of the Ned Abercrombie death. The report states, "The accidental death of Ned Abercrombie, who was killed by an I. & C. traction car on the evening of October 27, 1920, I find that the nature of wounds received resulted from the body being crushed under the wheels of the traction car and death was instantaneous.

Spectacles.

We are told that the ancients had no spectacles. Roger Bacon, an English scholar of the thirteenth century, is said to have first pointed out that old persons with weak eyes would see letters better by reading through a plano-convex lens, but the credit of first showing the world how to use spectacles is given to Alessandro di Spina, an Italian monk, who died in Pisa in 1313.

BETTER SCHOOLS CAMPAIGN NOV. 7

Object of Campaign is to Arouse Citizens to Realization That Indiana No Longer Leads

MINISTERS TO CO-OPERATE

Mr. Hines and District Campaign Managers Will Have Charge of Campaign in Districts

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 3.—The state wide campaign for better schools is scheduled to be opened Sunday Nov. 7, when all ministers have been asked to preach for the better schools.

The object of the campaign is to arouse the citizens of the state to the realization that Indiana no longer leads in education as it has in the past. The recent Russell Sage Foundation report ranked Indiana seventeenth among the states in educational efficiency and leaders of the drive are determined to take immediate steps to improve the rating.

Chambers of Commerce and various other organizations throughout the state will assist the state department of instruction in their drive.

Special legislation is needed to improve the efficiency of the Indiana Public school system and this will be advocated throughout the state in the hope that the next session of the legislature will enact progressive school laws.

"Many things need yet to be done in regard to our rural schools," said L. N. Hines, superintendent of Public Instruction. "The efficient and up to date rural schools will help prevent the drift of the country children to the city schools. For the first time in the history of the U. S. the census will probably show that there are more people in the cities than there are in the country. If the people are to be held in the country they must have a good chance to educate their children as they would have in the cities."

District campaign managers will have charge of the campaign in their districts and the campaign as a whole will be in charge of Mr. Hines.

CORN HUSKING BEGINS IN EARNEST IN COUNTY

Much Too Early Wise Farmers Say to Venture Anything Like Close Prediction of Yield

QUALITY IS DISAPPOINTING

The last major task of the farmer's autumn, the corn husking, has begun in earnest. It has been going in slow and cautious fashion in the valley lands for the last two weeks but no great amount of corn was piled up until last week. Now the danger of heating, which is a very real one when corn has much sap remaining in it, is believed to be past.

It is much too early, wise farmers say, to venture anything like a close prediction as to the county's yield. Some of them do say, however, that while the yield in bushels will be large, the quality is a little disappointing, at least in many fields. It is found that the ripening of the grain, in the fine, dry and frequently hot weather of late September and early October was a little too swift. It dried the grain at such speed that, in some instances at least, it lacked the solidity and weight it had last year; it comes near to being chaffy, and less excellent for feeding. Yet, the certainty of hundreds of thousands of bushels of fine grain is too plain to be denied.

Under the spell of the late rains, acres of wheat which had caused their owners much anxiety until then, have sprung up. That some fields were damaged by the prolonged drouth is known but it is now the impression that the county's wheat crop, so far as its start is concerned, is, considered as a whole, in very good condition.
